Tips on Setting Up and Using Your Success Tips

Setting Up Your Success Tips

If you would like to automate your marketing, you can set up your success tips to be automatically sent to your list on a regular basis by pre-loading them into your database management system. Most database management software systems have the capability of sending automated or timed emails so that you load them once, schedule their delivery and leave them alone. Examples of the more popular email management systems are AWeber (www.aweber.com), Constant Contact (www.constantcontact.com), iContact (www.icontact.com), 1ShoppingCart (www.1shoppingcart.com), Infusionsoft (www.infusionsoft.com), or Ontraport (www.ontraport.com). You can research these to determine which solution is a best fit for your business needs.

For blog posts, you can simply preload your blogs and schedule in advance the days you want them to post.

As always, we recommend that you customize these success tips with your own stories, anecdotes and personal messages. But keep them short as that is what makes this tool so effective!

Using Your Success Tips

Staying in touch with your list in a meaningful way is the key to creating relationships, developing trust and familiarity, and ultimately converting your prospects into clients. Using numerous tools and delivering them through a variety of mediums allows you to be creative in your marketing which is more attractive to your prospects and clients.

Success Tips are a fantastic tool to use because they are short, provide great value, and can be delivered in written, audio or video form.

We recommend using your Success Tips in conjunction with the other Ready2Go products (<http://www.Ready2GoMarketingSolutions.com>), as all the Ready2Go products coordinate together.

Here are a few ways you can use your Ready2Go Tips: (also, for consistency with this bulleted list either add a period to all or remove from all)

- Blog posts
- A “Thought of the Week” or “Success Tip of the Week”, that provides value, is easy to read, and is a meaningful touch.
- A short article in your newsletter
- Can be recorded and emailed in audio form, placed on your blog, on your website or sent in your newsletter.
- Can be developed into a short video training and be emailed to your list, placed on your blog, on your website, or sent in your newsletter.

What Motivates You?

In the movie Cast Away Tom Hanks' character, Chuck Noland, is marooned on an isolated island. He manages to stay alive sleeping in a cave, and eating raw fish and coconuts. For three long years he deals with every possible emotion ranging the spectrum, multiple injuries, the blistering sun, and terrible storms.

With rescue more unlikely with each passing day, why did Chuck Noland choose survival? He could have just given up. But Chuck persevered because of his desire to see his fiancé again. That's the drive that kept him alive.

While few of us will ever be faced with such extreme survival situations, we do have one thing in common - we're all motivated to do what it takes to get what we want if we want it bad enough. Whether that's to be reunited with a loved one, getting that job promotion, or satisfying that craving for an ice cream sundae, we instinctively set our eyes on the goal and take the steps necessary to get there.

What is Motivation?

Motivation is that driving force that initiates and pushes us to take action in order to achieve something. Often times it feels instinctive, internally driven, like there is something inside of us pushing us to move forward.

In his book, Drive, author Daniel Pink suggests three elements that drive us to do our best work:

Autonomy.

This is the urge to be self-directed. We do the work because we're engaged, not because we're told to. Self directed people have buy-in to the bigger purpose.

Mastery.

It's human nature to want to be better at doing things. Take playing guitar for example. For most, there is no recording contract in our future. We do it for fun and the challenge and satisfaction of improving our skill and technique.

Purpose.

Connecting to a cause bigger than ourselves fuels our deepest motivations. People want to believe in what they do and who they're doing it for.

On the island, Chuck was self-directed, he needed to master skills to survive, and his purpose was to see his fiancé again. What's your reason and desire for keeping on track with your goals?

What concrete steps are willing to take right now to improve your autonomy, mastery or purpose?
